The 2013–14 University of Dayton Speaker Series brings us a diverse group of distinguished scholars, activists and artists dedicated to a common theme: “Human Rights: A Global Challenge.”

Our speakers have achieved substantial national or international recognition, and they initiate purposeful discussion within our community concerning critical, contemporary issues. And diversity is a key. Speakers offer different cultural, political and religious perspectives. This engages our students, faculty, staff and community in harmony with the mission of the University.
