What is the blended MBA program at UD?

Flexibility meets function. In our MBA program, you benefit from both the personal experience of face-to-face interaction and the convenience of online content. Current research indicates students in blended programs have a higher achievement level than students in strictly traditional or online programs.

You’ll experience that increased achievement at UD: Approximately one-third of each of your courses will be spent in person, gaining knowledge through practical experience and collaboration to add depth and further discovery of the wealth of content delivered online.

You will also receive relevant and meaningful academic experiences infused with Marianist principles — whether you’re in the classroom or your living room. That’s the difference of our blended MBA program.

Our Curriculum

Our blended MBA program is 30 credit hours and is designed for students who hold a recently earned undergraduate degree in business. If you have a nonbusiness degree or lack course work in key areas, some foundation courses may be required.

The program is composed of:

›› Eight core courses (12 credit hours).
›› One ethics course (three credit hours).
›› Three elective courses (nine credit hours).*
›› Two capstone courses (six credit hours).

*Study abroad experiences may be eligible for elective courses.

A transformational experience

Under the blended model, each face-to-face meeting will be structured to give you experiential applications of the material learned throughout the term, including work on real-world scenarios, individual and team presentations and guest speakers.

The online class components provide a learning environment that allows you to work at a time convenient for you — and at your own pace. Through instructional videos, team-building exercises and interactive assignments, you’ll learn and apply principles just as you would in the classroom.
