

Joint Degree Program – M.B.A./J.D.

The ultimate step toward success - UD's combined M.B.A./J.D.

Our joint program enables students to obtain two professional degrees concurrently and conveniently.

The School of Business Administration and the School of Law will work with you to design the specific requirements of your program and save you valuable time. When you have completed the program, your credentials will double your opportunities.

To apply for admission to the joint degree program, you must meet the admission requirements of both the School of Law and the School of Business Administration. Full applications should be submitted to both schools, along with all other records and data required. You should indicate to each office that you are seeking admission to the joint program.

Upon admission, you will be enrolled in the J.D. and M.B.A. programs simultaneously. The first year of coursework is normally in the School of Law if you have not already started your MBA coursework, so it is advisable to contact the School of Law early.

You are clearly ready for the challenge. We will get you ready for success.

M.B.A./J.D. Program Details

The M.B.A./J.D. joint degree program is an integrated program of study which leads to both the Juris Doctor and the Master of Business Administration degrees. This joint degree program is offered in response to a growing need for professionals trained in both fields. The combined degree program provides a unique opportunity of professional study for those who wish to complete a program of legal education as well as graduate level training in business, administration, management, and economics.

Basic Program Structure

- Generally, the first year is taken entirely in Law School and covers the same prescribed courses for all law students
- Coursework in the second and third years are distributed between Law and MBA courses
- The fourth year consists largely of Law courses to complete the J.D. requirements
- Students with a business administration undergraduate degree can expect to complete all requirements for both degrees by the end of the first term of the fourth year
- Students with undergraduate degrees in other fields normally require additional hours for prerequisite courses for the M.B.A. In such cases, students can expect to complete both degrees in four full school years
- In general, completion of the entire program is done in one term less than would be required if each degree program were pursued independently
- Upon completion of the program, the two degrees are conferred
- By pursuing a J.D. and an M.B.A., students can double-count electives to eliminate a total of 12 credit hours, as 6 elective credits from the JD can be transferred into the MBA program, and 6 elective credits from the MBA program can be transferred into the JD program (courses must be approved by each program)
- It is the student's responsibility to make sure that the elective credits will count

Admission to the Program

- Students must meet the admission requirements for both the Law School and the Masters of Business Administration, including the LSAT and GMAT/GRE requirement
- Online application for admission should be submitted to each of the schools, along with other records and data required by each school
- Applicants should indicate on each application that admission is sought for the joint program
- Upon admission to both degree programs, students will be enrolled in the J.D. and M.B.A. programs simultaneously

Acceleration of the Program

Students may accelerate the joint degree program by attending summer sessions. Both schools offer courses during the summer. Therefore, it is possible to complete the degree requirements for both degrees in three calendar years through such acceleration.

Program Planning

Upon admission to the joint degree program, each student is required to meet with the program advisor from each program to plan an individual program. Continuous liaison must be maintained with program advisors throughout the program.
