EMERGING LEADER CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

WHY CLIMB THE LADDER WHEN YOU CAN TAKE THE ELEVATOR?

Today’s leaders are expected to retain high potential employees and build bench strength for the future. It can take up to 10 years to develop a top-performing mid-level leader into a successful executive. The Emerging Leader program is designed to be a catalyst in this process.

Combining 20 days of leadership and business skill training, multiple assessments, executive coaching and formal mentoring, this program delivers measurable improvements in your leadership effectiveness – transforming high potential individuals into top performing leaders.

Led by local, regional and national thought leaders, and top professors from the University of Dayton’s School of Business Administration, the Emerging Leader Certificate Program helps attendees transition to higher level leadership roles seamlessly, confidently and successfully.

THE BENEFITS

• Broad-based training on critical topics, including: executive communication, legal and ethical issues in the workplace, coaching for performance, leading change, finance, operations management, marketing and many more.

• A strong professional network across industries with other rising leaders, relationships you can leverage for a lifetime.

• A comprehensive 360° assessment of your leadership strengths/opportunities and feedback, as well as mentoring and coaching to support your growth and development as a leader.

• The opportunity to attend two Executive Development programs at no additional cost in the 12 months following your graduation from the program.
The Emerging Leader program was a true “game changer” for me and my career. I had the opportunity to talk with and learn from high caliber leadership experts. The Emerging Leader Program provided the tools I needed to be an effective leader and changed the way I think.

EMERGING LEADER CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

JANUARY 23, 2014
8:30 AM–4:30 PM
COMPLETE CERTIFICATE $12,000

ORIENTATION:
USING PERSONALITY TYPE &
STYLES TO FOSTER LEADERSHIP

This program introduces participants to the Emerging Leader program and lays the foundation for a yearlong commitment to leadership development. The morning session features an overview of the Emerging Leader program, including the program guidelines, curriculum, assessments, mentoring and coaching.

Then, leaders will spend time learning about personality types and styles as well as assess their own preferred types. In order for a leader to maximize their own performance and their teams performance, they must have a solid understanding of who they are as a leader.

Emerging Leaders will leave this session with a better understanding of how to leverage their preferred styles to become more effective leaders, to communicate more effectively with others and to leverage various types and styles to build top performing teams.

Roger Fortman

Roger Fortman has been a consultant, trainer and executive coach for the past 20 years, working with organizations across the United States and in Sweden. He provides training and consultation in strategic planning, leadership development, change and culture management, team building, generations, diversity, behavioral interviewing, and conflict and stress management.

Roger is a qualified/certified trainer in Achieve/Global (Zenger Miller), DDI including Targeted Selection, DISC Indra and Myers-Briggs Personality Types. He is also a national executive coach for the National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization. Roger has taught at the University of Dayton and Wright State University.

LEADING CHANGE

This program provides a framework to help the Emerging Leader navigate through the challenges posed by today’s dynamic business environments. The hard fact is that most major change initiatives do not deliver as promised – the good news is that we know why. We will explore what those who lead others in the midst of major change can do to drastically increase their likelihood of success.

By the end of this session leaders will have a greater understanding of the human dynamics that inhibit – or contribute to – organizational transition from two perspectives:

1. What we can do to increase the speed and efficiency with which we, personally, move through change.

2. What we, as leaders, can do to enable those around us in moving successfully through change.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

• Increase their skill in approaching change in your organization in order to deliver on the desired outcome.

• Better enable self and others in moving effectively through the change processes.

• Enhance their own personal resilience to change so that they can manage and lead others in the organization.

Rod Goelz is a Senior Executive with Conner Partners, a leading Change Execution firm. He has facilitated change execution across a wide range of clients from the Fortune 50 to local governments. He has a track record of driving results while also transferring capability, thus helping clients successfully navigate immediate strategic change and leaving them better equipped for future change execution.

As the leader of Conner Partners Knowledge Transfer practice, Rod mixes humor and high energy with over 20 years of experience and a strong application focus to create powerful, high value leadership development experience.

MENTOR TRAINING

This session offers critical training for both Emerging Leaders and mentors to help start the mentoring relationship on the right track. Emerging Leaders and their mentors attend this session together and leave with a better understanding of what formal mentoring truly entails.

Mentors will also gain an overview on the Emerging Leader program, what programs their mentee will participate in and how they can provide the needed support over a 12-month period to assist in their mentees growth and development.

Using a unique process that identifies and leverages preferred styles of mentoring, we help you clearly define your unique mentoring relationship. Emerging Leaders and mentors collaboratively outline the expectations and guidelines for how to best work together during the next year to foster the development of both Emerging Leaders and mentors.

Brent Kondritz is the Assistant Director and Program Manager of the University of Dayton Center for Leadership. Prior to joining the University of Dayton Center for Leadership team in 2010, he held the following positions: corporate trainer, manager of training and development, senior HR manager, director of sales and operations, and director of strategy within Sprint, BellSouth/AT&T and The Berry Company. He is also a certified trainer/practitioner in assessments, leadership and lean practices.

Kondritz received his B.S. in marketing and minor in psychology from Eastern Illinois University and his MBA from the University of Nebraska at Kearney.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

- Recognize the differences between formal and informal mentoring.
- Understand and practice four different styles of mentoring and their uses.
- Assess your preferred mentoring styles and the styles of your partner.

ACCOUNTING FUNDAMENTALS: FINANCE FOR NON-FINANCIAL MANAGERS I

Income statements, balance sheets, credits and debits, oh my! This program will serve as an accounting primer for those with little or no financial background, or a refresher for those who have been away from Accounting 101.

A firm’s Balance Sheet, Income Statement and Statement of Cash Flows provide the users of these statements with important information about the firm’s financial position, results of operations and cash flows. However, each of these statements is prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Leaders will learn how to understand a firm’s financial statements, including how each of these statements are prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and how these statements provide crucial information about the firm. This basic understanding will also help leaders measure financial performance, critically assess information and make more effective business decisions.

Finally, leaders will leave this session feeling more prepared to explore the financial concepts presented in the Finance for Non-Financial Managers II program.

Joe Castellano

Joe Castellano is a full-time Professor of Accounting at the University of Dayton. He teaches both required and elective courses in both the undergraduate and MBA programs.

Prior to coming to the University in 1999, he was Professor of Accounting and former Dean of the College of Business at Wright State University. He has extensive consulting experience, has served on corporate boards and has developed numerous continuing education programs for Fortune 500 companies and banks. He is also a facilitator for Aileron.
Leslie Douglas is a full-time lecturer in finance at the University of Dayton. She teaches introductory finance as well as corporate finance electives in both the undergraduate and MBA programs.

Prior to joining the University in 2002, she worked in industry for 15 years, principally in the areas of corporate treasury and finance, and investor relations.

Douglas has an undergraduate degree in business administration from The Ohio State University and an MBA from Harvard Business School.

FINANCE FOR NON-FINANCIAL MANAGERS II

Whether you work in a corporate, non-profit or government organization, your understanding of key financial indicators will enhance your overall effectiveness as a business leader, investor and general consumer. This program outlines the fundamental concepts of corporate finance and financial management.

Using a case-study approach, this session focuses on understanding key financial indicators, and gives insight into both the causes and the consequences of weak financial performance. Having an understanding of these concepts will allow you to be better prepared to lead your organization from a financial perspective.

Participants leave with a heightened understanding of the financial environment, measures of financial health and decision-making models, and derive a greater awareness of the various stakeholder relationships that are at issue in organizations.

This program will help leaders:
- Provide an introduction to the fundamental concepts of corporate finance and financial management.
- Interpret and use financial statements and financial ratios.
- Understand the impact of value drivers on a firm’s valuation.

Leslie Douglas

Leslie Douglas is a full-time lecturer in finance at the University of Dayton. She teaches introductory finance as well as corporate finance electives in both the undergraduate and MBA programs.

Prior to joining the University in 2002, she worked in industry for 15 years, principally in the areas of corporate treasury and finance, and investor relations.

OPERATIONS MANAGEMENT

Operations Management encompasses functional roles and competencies critical to designing the right products and services, and designing, managing and improving the business processes and supply chain to efficiently and effectively serve customers. The workshop focuses on the strategies and techniques of business processes and supply chain management for ensuring superior operational and overall business performance.

Topics include operations and business processes improvement approaches and tools, extending from single-organization operations to supply chain management. Leaders will leave this program with a better understanding and appreciation of operations management. The impact that operations have on an organization can be tremendous, so understanding how it works plays an important role in leading.

Mike Gorman is an Associate Professor at the University of Dayton in the Department of MIS, OM and DSC. Dr. Gorman has 10 years of experience in the rail industry at BNSF Railway and regularly consults for both shippers and carriers in transportation and logistics issues. Gorman’s work has been published in Manufacturing and Services Operations Management, Annals of OR, Interfaces, Applied Economics and Transportation Quarterly, among others. He was a finalist in INFORMS’ Daniel Wagner Competition for Applied Research in 2005. He is a referee for numerous peer-reviewed journals. Gorman has five years of service in INFORMS Rail Applications Special interest group, including Chair. He is currently the Treasurer of the Cincinnati-Dayton local chapter of INFORMS.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

• Understand the implications of operations strategies for the design of products and services, and for the design and management of business processes in creating these products.

• Recognize the business process perspective of operations design and improvement.

• Appreciate the utility of operations and business process planning and improvement competencies for superior overall business performance.

MARKETING ESSENTIALS

This program highlights the essential elements of successful marketing strategies, so that business leaders can leverage marketing to achieve competitive advantage. Using case studies and small group discussion, participants conduct market and customer analyses of an organization to identify competitive advantages and core competencies, and generate ideas to increase sales and profits.

Participants will learn to analyze markets, competitors, environments and customers. Additionally, they will explore potential strategies to capitalize on an organization’s strategic assets and take advantage of competitive opportunities.

This interactive program will also help leaders learn the most effective ways to respond to the marketing challenges that organizations face today.

Irene Dickey

Irene Dickey received her undergraduate degree in management and marketing from the University of Dayton. After graduation, she received her MBA in finance from Wright State University.

Currently, Irene is a professor of marketing in the University of Dayton’s School of Business Administration. Irene has also published and presented numerous occasions on the topic of marketing, especially Internet and eMarketing.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

• Understand the meaning of a market orientation and the relationship of marketing with other functional areas of the firm.

• Learn about the basic marketing mix elements and how tactical decisions regarding these elements relate to marketing strategy.

• Apply basic marketing strategies and decision models.
John Gentner is an Executive in Residence and full-time lecturer at the University of Dayton. As a member of the Department of Management and Marketing, Gentner teaches numerous courses on the topic of leadership and strategic management. Recently, he took over responsibilities for the university’s MBA capstone course, which allows graduate students the opportunity to solve real-world issues for area companies. Each year, Gentner oversees between 20 and 30 student-led consulting projects involving companies throughout Ohio and neighboring states.

With a business career that spans more than two decades, Gentner brings a significant amount of professional experience and practical knowledge into the classroom. He spent more than 16 years with Fifth Third Bank, holding numerous management positions before ending his career as a Vice President. He earned his B.A. in management from Capital University and his MBA from the University of Dayton. He has also taught courses abroad as part of the University’s international business program.

BUSINESS SIMULATION

During this business simulation, participants work in teams to plan and implement company operations on an annual basis. Each team functions as a knowledge service company and competes with other teams for knowledge, workers and customers. All companies start out on equal terms and are able at all times to observe the consequences of each other’s decisions.

At the end of each “year” they calculate their financial performance of the company, as well as their alignment between levels of manpower and customer projects. Teams develop their own annual profit and loss statements and balance sheets and calculate their market value using formulas to determine their intellectual and competency values.

There are no predetermined “winners,” as the outcome of the competition between the companies is determined only by the interactive competitive decisions of the companies and their collective interaction with customer and people marketplaces.

This program will test your business skills and put into application what you have learned in the Emerging Leader program to date.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

• “Run a business” from a management or executive perspective.
• Lead and work cooperatively in a team environment.
• Integrate the various business and leadership skills learned throughout the Emerging Leader program.

Jim Norris's expertise is in business simulations, focusing on helping people realize the financial results of their decisions.

During his multifaceted career, Jim has served as an internal and external consultant in the areas of business literacy, leadership development, financial systems, profitability analysis, change management, mergers and ethical influence.

Jim is a CPA and a high-level MBA graduate of the Goizueta Business School at Emory University.
Jill Haney, founder of JH Image Consulting, provides corporations and their employees with consultation and training on appearance, behavior, etiquette and communication that give those employees self-confidence, commanding presence and credibility. Jill is a certified image consultant with the Association of Image Consultants International (AICI). Jill has worked with major clients such as Procter & Gamble, Johnson & Johnson, Fifth Third Bank and General Cable Corporation to deliver customized solutions and training to address image.

Jill authors a weekly column in the business section of the Cincinnati Enquirer called Image Rules that addresses a wide range of image related issues. She has also been featured on TV and radio programs, including Cincinnati’s ABC affiliate WCPO and WKRC Q-102 FM.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION: GAINING THE ADVANTAGE THROUGH PROFESSIONAL PRESENCE

Can an improper interaction cost you a client or your opportunity to advance? Absolutely. Your professional presence can be the difference between you signing that big deal, keeping a long term client and/or impacting your next move in the organization.

This program is packed full of the most up-to-date business trends as it pertains to the things that will make a big difference in your career: image, communication, dress and etiquette.

Learn tips to set you apart from your competition. This program focuses on the importance of first impressions, how image influences perception, non-verbal communication, business technology of today and the finer points of professional dining.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION: COMMUNICATING AS AN EXECUTIVE LEADER

As a managerial or executive-level professional, your communication will be key to employee development, productivity, and morale. Even as a leader or committee chairperson, your goal should be to bring about outcomes as a result of your communication.

Think about some of the greatest leaders of the past...the one thing those leaders had in common was the ability to communicate their message. In order to truly inspire others within your team or organization, it is critical to master this crucial component of being a leader.

To achieve the desired response, you need to think strategically about your communication – before you begin to write or speak. Careful planning related to the following factors can help increase your confidence and effectiveness with a variety of audiences: (1) communicator style, (2) audience, (3) message, (4) channel choice, and (5) culture.

This program will help you by giving you the needed tools to be the presenter others will be inspired by and follow.

Nicky Adams

Nicky Adams teaches professional communication courses for students across the curriculum and administrative staff at University of Dayton. She also coordinates the English department’s Writing Internship Program to allow students to experience the functions and effects of their writing within the professional workplace.

In addition to her role at UD, Nicky conducts training sessions for area organizations and businesses on various communication topics through her LLC, Workplace Communication Consulting. Nicky was also a Training Consultant in the Workforce Development division of Sinclair for four years and the Director of Wright State University’s Writing Center for five years, where she maintained a Writer’s Hotline for the campus and local business community.
Dick Ferguson was named Executive Director of the Fitz Center for Leadership in Community in 2001. In the community, Dick currently serves on the Advisory Board of the Montgomery County Community Action Partnership, Phoenix Project Board of Directors and Investment Committee, Daybreak Runaway Shelter Board of Trustees, and Good Samaritan Hospital and Samaritan Health Partners Boards of Trustees. He also co-directs Dayton’s Neighborhood School Centers Initiative.

Dick is a 1973 graduate of the University of Dayton (B.A. in English) and a 1993 graduate of The Ohio State University School of Public Policy and Management (M.A. in public policy). Both Dick and his wife, Susan, are recipients of the Lackner Award for their staff contributions to the Marianist character of the University of Dayton.

LEADERSHIP THAT BUILDS COMMUNITY:
HOW TO BE EFFECTIVE LEADING OUTSIDE YOUR OWN ORGANIZATION

This session will explore principles and techniques of community leadership. It is not the same as organizational leadership, but most organizational leaders are asked to bring their gifts and the resources of their organizations to the work of building and strengthening communities.

The session will include: an overview of the leadership challenges in building communities, an introduction to five successful approaches to leading in community and examples from the Fitz Center for Leadership in Community at the University of Dayton.

This program then concludes with identifying service projects, which Emerging Leaders will champion to make a difference in the local community.
LEGAL & ETHICAL ISSUES IN THE WORKPLACE

How often have we turned on the television or checked out a news website to see the cover story pertain to inappropriate behavior by an organization’s leader? The answer is probably too many...

The legal and regulatory environment of business continues to evolve with new complexities and challenges for leaders. State and federal laws on employment discrimination, the protection of intellectual property, safety and product liability, anti-competitive behavior, and corporate integrity and ethics continue to provide traps for the unwary.

This program focuses on the critical substantive knowledge every leader should possess to identify these legal and ethical issues when they arise and improve the company’s exposure to legal liability.

Topics include: employment law, intellectual property, white-collar criminal law and antitrust law.

LEARN, LEAD & SERVE

A leader’s responsibility to make a difference extends beyond their professional life and into their community.

This program will build upon “Leadership that Builds Community: How to be Effective Leading Outside Your Own Organization,” by exploring opportunities for leaders to demonstrate their leadership abilities in their communities. In addition to spending some time exploring some of the similarities and differences in leading a community organization versus leading in a professional environment, the group will collectively decide upon a community organization or service to support.

Emerging Leaders will spend one day not only putting these newly honed leadership skills to work but also serving the Dayton community and making a difference.

Brent Kondritz is the Assistant Director and Program Manager of the University of Dayton’s Center for Leadership. Prior to joining the University of Dayton Center for Leadership team, Kondritz held the following positions: corporate trainer, manager of training and development, senior HR manager, director of sales and operations, and director of strategy within Sprint, BellSouth/AT&T and The Berry Company. He is also a certified trainer/practitioner in assessments, leadership and lean practices.

COACHING FOR PERFORMANCE

Coaching for Performance is designed to enhance a leader’s management skills and prepare them for the changing demands of today’s global marketplace.

This program is an interactive, straightforward, developmental session combining training, skill evaluation, coaching, group activities and strategic visioning.

Participants will evaluate where we’ve come in our approach to coaching and where we must go as managers to not only survive but to thrive and truly maximize the potential of our employees and corporations.

You will learn how you, your team and your organization can benefit when you master the skills of coaching.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

• Identify the critical factors to consider when coaching someone who has a different style.

• Use an analysis tool to identify the root cause of the performance issue.

• Demonstrate the necessary steps of the coaching conversation.

CREATING A GREAT WORKPLACE CULTURE

The value of a great place to work is one that benefits both employees and organizations. It creates a formula for success and helps drive performance. If we realize the importance of creating a great place to work culture, then why do some leaders and organizations struggle to create it, while others seem to make it look so easy?

Are you intrigued by the creative, productive work environment at companies such as Google, Microsoft, Marriott International, FedEx, and NetApp, yet struggle with how to get there? In this program, Jennifer Robin explores the concept of a great workplace and answers the fundamental question about creating a great place to work culture through her anecdotes, best practices and real-life examples.

Building trust in the workplace is a powerful advantage to your team and your company, but it’s just a start. A “great workplace” is one where employees not only trust the people they work for, but take pride in what they do, and enjoy the people they work with.

Drawing on decades of research, Jennifer articulates the importance of building a great workplace culture and brings ideas for how leaders can create and reinforce the core values of trust, pride and camaraderie with every communication, decision and interaction. Over time, leading to better recruitment, lower turnover, loyal customers, higher productivity and, just as important, a more fulfilling work experience for managers and employees alike.

Jennifer Robin, Ph.D., is the coauthor of The Great Workplace: How to Build It, How to Keep It, and Why It Matters. A sought after speaker and facilitator, Jennifer has spoken to thousands of managers aiming to improve their workplaces. Jennifer is a faculty member in the Foster College of Business at Bradley University where she teaches in the area of leadership, organizational effectiveness, and human resources management. Jennifer is also a Research Fellow and an Adjunct Consultant at the Great Place to Work Institute where she led the Advisory Practice, helping senior leaders integrate their organization’s culture with its strategy and aligning efforts to be a great workplace. Jennifer has experience working in diverse industries such as manufacturing, biotechnology, information technology, professional services, and healthcare.

EXECUTIVE EFFECTIVENESS:
KEY STRATEGIES FOR INCREASING ENGAGEMENT

Corporate America is facing an energy crisis. Crushing workloads, a 24/7 economy and ever increasing expectations require that leaders skillfully access high energy levels whenever and wherever the work experience demands it. Effectively managing energy requires training like an elite Corporate Athlete®.

To increase capacity for performing under pressure, leaders must train strategically to improve their ability to expend and recover energy more efficiently and effectively. This interactive program will help you outline a plan to manage your energy, increase your productivity and maximize performance in the areas of your life where it matters most.

Lisa Beutel is the Director of the Center for Leadership. She initially came to the University of Dayton for the role of Sports Marketing Manager, and after a two-year stint at a marketing and advertising firm, joined the Center for Leadership Team team in 2001.

She is certified in a number of leadership assessment instruments, including the Myers Briggs Type Instrument, Mentoring Style Indicator, Personnel Decisions International executive assessments and the Lominger Architect Suite assessments. Beutel is certified by the Human Performance Institute as a facilitator of The Power of Full Engagement program.

She received a B.A. in political science from North Carolina State University, an M.A. in education from the University of Akron and received her Ph.D. in educational leadership from the University of Dayton.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

• Maximize performance and increase productivity in all aspects of business and personal life.

• Acquire the comprehensive energy management skills required to make energy investments in any area of life.

• Balance energy expenditure with intermittent energy renewal by utilizing nutrition and movement strategies.

THE LEADERSHIP CHALLENGE

Today’s – and tomorrow’s – most successful companies are creatively adapting to unceasing change and uncertainty by encouraging leadership at every level of the organization. The new competitive requirements – quality, innovation, customer responsiveness and flexibility – demand an organization filled with people taking the lead in improving processes collaborating on products and responding appropriately to ever-changing markets. Managers, while struggling to get better results with fewer people and resources, are realizing that full participation is not “good;” it is critical.

Only the concerted and enthusiastic efforts of everyone will give us the edge we need. This is the challenge addressed by “The Leadership Challenge.” This program is based on the award-winning book The Leadership Challenge and the acclaimed management workshop based on its research.

Participants discover how they have shown leadership in the past to meet business and personal challenges, allowing them to gain the confidence and skill to increase their use of the Five Practices of Exemplary Leaders on the job. Your eyes will be opened by the group discussions and activities that take place in this program.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

• Recognize how leadership is key to their ability to succeed in challenging situations.

• Understand and implement the Five Practices of Exemplary Leaders on the job: model the way, inspire a shared vision, challenge the process, enable others and encourage the heart.

• Identify their leadership strengths and areas for improvement.
