

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

OCTOBER 22, 2015

8:30 AM–4:30 PM

PROJECT LEADERSHIP

Organizing and managing the day-to-day activities of a project can be challenging enough. However, successful project managers must also have the skills necessary to develop a highperforming team, make and implement effective decisions and communication with and influence stakeholders outside the core project team. The difference between management and leadership will forever be debated, but when it comes to projects it's a clear delineation – you manage the process and lead the people. This one-day program focuses on four skills necessary to effectively lead the people associated with a project.

THIS PROGRAM WILL HELP LEADERS:

- Identify, communicate with, and influence stakeholders
- Develop a productive project team
- Make effective project decisions

Bob Jewell

Bob Jewell is the founder and CEO of the Omega Leadership Group. He has more than 25 years of experience at the executive level as a practicing manager, coach and leader. His responsibilities have included engineering, operations and business development. Jewell's extensive real-world experiences, combined with his strong communication, facilitation and presentations skills, create a dynamic and enjoyable learning environment.

Jewell holds a degree in engineering from The Ohio State University and is certified as Project Management Professional by the Project Management Institute. His work in the areas of leadership development, project management, employee engagement and strategic planning has earned him the respect of clients such as Kroger, Toyota, General Electric, Fed Ex and Catholic Health Partners.