West Chester, Ohio 45069 | West Chester, Ohio | The Student Blog Writing Project:
This project’s goal is to give current law students an easy way to earn extra money while educating themselves and the community on relevant legal topics. In doing so, we hope students will gain valuable experience that will assist in their future practice of law, and in interviews when students are asked what they have done that stands out. Students writing for the blog will get authorship for their articles, and can put the experience on their resumes. An attorney at the firm will review all submitted articles, and all submitted articles should include the students’ resume. Even though students will receive $20.00 per cost compensation, students writing for the blog are considered freelance writers rather than employees. This project is about connections - connecting the layperson with the knowledge they need, connecting the students with the employers, and connecting those in legal need with the ones that can help them most.
