

University Libraries use social media (e.g. website, social networking sites, email, etc.) to engage the University of Dayton community in discussions of books, services, materials, and programs. The Libraries recognize and respect differences in opinion. Comments, posts, and messages are welcome as they are the opinion of the author only. Publication of a comment does not imply endorsement or agreement by the University of Dayton or the Libraries. Comments that are in violation of these guidelines or contain the following will be removed:

- Obscene or racist content
- Personal attacks, insults, or threatening language
- Potentially libelous statements
- Plagiarized materials
- Private, personal information published without permission
- Comments totally unrelated to the content of the forum
- Hyperlinks to material that is not directly related to the discussion
- Submission of a comment establishes the acceptance of and adherence to the guidelines.

Content originating from University Libraries employees is not moderated. We allow our employees to post directly to the social media outlets without approval. All social media outlets must post a link to these guidelines.

If you have any questions or comments about these guidelines or would like to report a violation of the guidelines, please contact librariesmarketing@udayton.edu
