

Why you should attend:

- Parents will understand the subtleties of racism and learn to teach their children to respect diversity as a gift from God.
- Parish staff will explore new ways of recognizing and welcoming the diverse members in their faith community.
- Clergy will gain insight to preach a message that “all are welcome”
- School and university staff will better understand how to address the racism that often emerges in the midst of school mergers and closings or on the campus

What is Justice?

"Common to every effort of social reconciliation is a recognition that deep social wounds cannot be healed without an honest examination of the reasons for and causes of the estrangement."... "Healing racial divisions, then, entails facing history and facing ourselves. It demands a truthful accounting and owning of responsibility, an acknowledgement of the complicity and indifference that fuel social ruptures, and confronting the inconvenient truths and naming the social falsehoods that enable injustice to occur."

Racial Justice and the Catholic Church –
Rev. Dr. Bryan Massingale

Dismantling Racism, Building the Kingdom

"...Catholic theology [expresses] the powerful presence of sin in the world and the ability of God's grace to overcome it through the action of the Holy Spirit, working in and through God's children. This teaching is beautifully expressed in the "Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World" [Gaudium et Spes]. Here the bishops of the Second Vatican Council describe human activity infected by sin but 'purified and perfected by the power of Christ's cross and Resurrection.'" They contend that creating a more just and peaceful society contributes to the building of the kingdom of God. In other words, with the aid of God's grace, "we shall overcome."

"Catholics and the Rise of Barack Obama:
Why Race Still Matters" –
Dr. Gerald Beyer – America – May 18, 2009
