

YOUR COLLEAGUES. YOUR COMMUNITY. SHARE IN THE DISCOVERY.

5th Annual STARS Symposium

Spotlight on Technology, Arts, Research and Scholarship

Support your colleagues and expand your knowledge at STARS.

You'll learn about important research happening across campus while showing your support for fellow academics and researchers who were nominated to present on innovative developments in their professional fields. Experience the discoveries happening right now in your UD community.

Thursday, Sept. 18, 2014

9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Science Center auditorium (Room 114)

A reception will follow in the Science Center auditorium lobby.

MORNING SCHEDULE

9 a.m. — A tribute to Peter Powers, one of our first speakers at STARS and a man who embodied our spirit of community and research.

9:30 a.m. — Joseph Haus, Ph.D., electro-optics graduate program, "Reaching the Bottom in Nanotechnology: Quantum Aspects of Nanoplasmonics"

9:55 a.m. — Keigo Hirakawa, Ph.D., electrical and computer engineering, "Oh, What a Difference Color Imaging Can Make"

10:20 a.m. — Matthew DeWitt, Ph.D., UDRI — fuels engineering group, "Development and Evaluation of Alternative Aviation Fuels"

10:45 a.m. — Carl Chen, Ph.D., economics and finance, "Board Diversity and Firm Value"

11:10 a.m. — Christian Kiewitz, Ph.D., management and marketing, "When Abused Employees Remain Silent: Effects of Assertiveness and Fear"

11:35 a.m. — Michelle Pautz, Ph.D., political science, "The Lilliputians of Environmental Regulation: On the Frontlines of Environmental Protection"

Noon — Lunch Break

AFTERNOON SCHEDULE

1:30 p.m. — Keynote Melinda Kruyer, executive director of the Confluence, Water Technology Innovation Cluster, "Fostering Innovation to Meet Global Water Needs, Generate Opportunities and Create Jobs"

2:20 p.m. — Roger Crum, Ph.D., art and design, "Of Local Fisticuffs and Knocked-out Reputations: The Wider Ring of Florentine Renaissance Art"

2:45 p.m. — Amit Singh, Ph.D., biology, "Alzheimer's Disease: The Silver Tsunami of the Twenty-First Century"

3:10 p.m. — Joel Warm, Ph.D., UDRI — human factors group, "Sustained Attention: A Human Factors Problem"

3:35 p.m. — Molly Schaller, Ph.D., counselor education and human services, "Insights from the College Sophomore Year Experience: The Power of Student Voice"

4 p.m. — "Faith and the Empirical World," Rites. Rights. Writes. Panel Discussion. This event is part of the Rites. Rights. Writes. initiative (go.udayton.edu/rrw), which is coordinated by the Graul Chair in Arts and Languages.

Moderator:

Brian LaDuca, MFA, director of ArtStreet

Panel members:

Jack Ling, institutional diversity and inclusion

Brad Kallenberg, religious studies

Margaret Pinnell, mechanical and aerospace engineering

Michelle Hayford, theatre program

5 p.m. — Reception, Science Center auditorium lobby

STARS is sponsored by the Office for Research.
For more information, visit udayton.edu/research/STARS or facebook.com/UniversityofDaytonSTARS.

