

Intellectual Property

Students and Student Organizations must follow the University's Intellectual Property Policy. If a student develops any intellectual property while using significant University resources, or as part their University employment, is owned by the University of Dayton. In addition, if a student wishes to use Intellectual Property of the University (i.e., University owned trademarks), they must first receive permission from Enrollment Management and Marketing, Athletics and/or the Intellectual Property Administrator.